Racism: A Cataclysmic Mental Health Crisis in America

September 23, 2016

Hey there. I thought if you spoke paranoid delusions, had schizophrenic tendencies and/or psychopathic desires, you were considered crazy or in need of mental health counseling and/or medication. Then how is it that Trump and all of his supporters are not in straightjackets with 24 hour supervision. Have you seen the Terrence Crutcher shooting? Not only are the guys in the helicopter delusional, but so is the cop on the ground. She said, the one on the ground, "I was never so scared in my life as in that moment right then." You were so afraid of an unarmed Black man with his hands in the air that you shot him. You know how the story goes, if he was on the ground tasered to death, she still would have shot him cause he might've gotten up from the dead and killed her. If you're that prone to violence at the sight of a Black man or Black people for that matter, why do you have a badge and a gun? That makes you a danger to the African-American population, as well as the rest of your fellow comrades who are thinking this way. And the guys in the helicopter are so afraid of him, they were probably pulling their guns to shoot him from the air with one of them commenting, he was a "bad dude." It's like a fucking scary cartoon! Oh, back to Trump and his supporters, then on Facebook, Arsenio Hall posted something from a woman who says, there was no racism until Obama got elected. Also, that Obama has made all the gun violence in the Black community come into existence and should take responsibility for it. It's all Obama's fault. And Mr. Trump is pointing out Black people's flaws. And that's good. First, only sane people will recognize the delusions in these statements. So there! When did racism in America start? When Obama became President of the United States. Excellent, paranoid delusional, schizophrenic, psychopathic students and no doubt, supporters of Trump. You're all doing great! Well, when facts and truth don't matter, what else can you think?

Next, Wells Fargo CEO Stumpf: If he were Black he wouldn't be asked to resign, he would have been in chains in some jail with a million dollar bail or more. FBI investigation, not pending, but in action. His family and friends would have been investigated and they would have frozen all of his money and assets and if possible his friend's and family's as well. What fancy law is there that says someone this corrupt gets to choose if he wants to resign his strong hold on stealing people's money from the bank? The money went into accounts that he directly profited from! This sounds like a Dave Chappelle sketch on the non-existent racism that exists!

Then there's Don King with his painted on Black skin and perfect coon speech with not one ounce of political truth in it to influence Black people to vote for Trump! Well, you know Black people if Don King is voting for him.....

And there's the 15 year old Black girl who got attacked by two "super wonderful, intelligent and awesome, probably award winning White cops" who peppered sprayed her and tossed her around like a rag doll, and denied her medical treatment. And their police chief defends them in Hagerstown in Maryland, while Whoopi and "The View Crew" honestly think more training is going to help stop police brutality. Sorry girls, more training is not going to eliminate racism from the souls of these racist cops. What are we gonna do, train them on how to look less guilty when they choose to shoot to kill for no reason other than they want to or are too afraid to make a proper judgment? As I said before, if that's the case then you really don't need a gun and a badge because you're a danger to the African-American population and others. Hence the too many deaths already by unnecessary brutal and deadly force on Blacks and minorities. Lastly, racial inequality is what helps to build ghettos and no jobs for Black men and women and other minority men and women, and making them feel like their lives are absolutely worthless and should be taken by any means necessary just ask any racist with a badge about it. "Let them eat cake." Right? And when they are full, what happens then? Meanwhile, "My People, Stop the Killing!" No one cares, but us.

So are we gonna vote for the systemic crazies who want to perpetuate these undeniable racist happenings or are we gonna use our heads and vote for sane people in the White House? Hillary! Hillary!
